Yep, it's pretty depressing, the number of outlets that simply don't care.

There are agencies now, such as CEN, that have arisen to meet the demand for viral bullshit.

This was one of the biggest things on the internet in the past week. Covered everywhere. Totally fake.

Thanks [REDACTED] I could talk for hours on the subject of "viral" news, and the way not-very-good stories end up being covered by a million different outlets. A lot of them are so thin they're actually quite difficult to debunk, despite almost certainly being fake.

This was today's example: <http://www.telegraph.co.uk/women/womens-life/11192120/Weibo-advert-Chinese-backpacker-offers-sex-in-exchange-for-travel-expenses.html>
